Located in its own atoll between Gaafu Dhaalu Atoll and Addu Atoll, the island of Fuvahmulah is the only one-island atoll in the Maldives. It has many distinctive features that make Fuvahmulah different from rest of the islands in Maldives. Fuvahmulah has a fish and a bird native to this island. That fish and bird are not found in any other part of the Maldives. It is also one of the few islands that have fresh water lakes. Promethichtys Promatheus, locally called Kattelhi, is native to the waters around Fuvahmulah. This rare species is also found in some other countries, but not in other parts of the Maldives. This rare catch lives below 200 meters. Kattelhi Rarudhiya is the locals' favourite soup and they say anyone who tastes this soup will come back to Fuvahmulah. Common Moorhen, locally called Valikukulhi, is the native bird to Fuvahmulah. It has black body with some white feathers in the lower back. Its beak shines red with yellowish tip, legs are yellowish with a red smear. Its bodily features are similar to that of water-hen which is commonly found throughout Maldives. Locals love to keep Valikukulhu as pet bird.

Fuvahmulah is among the closest to the equator which runs across the seas between Fuvahmulah and Huvadhu Atoll. The mid-point between North pole and South pole is known as equator and runs around the earth.

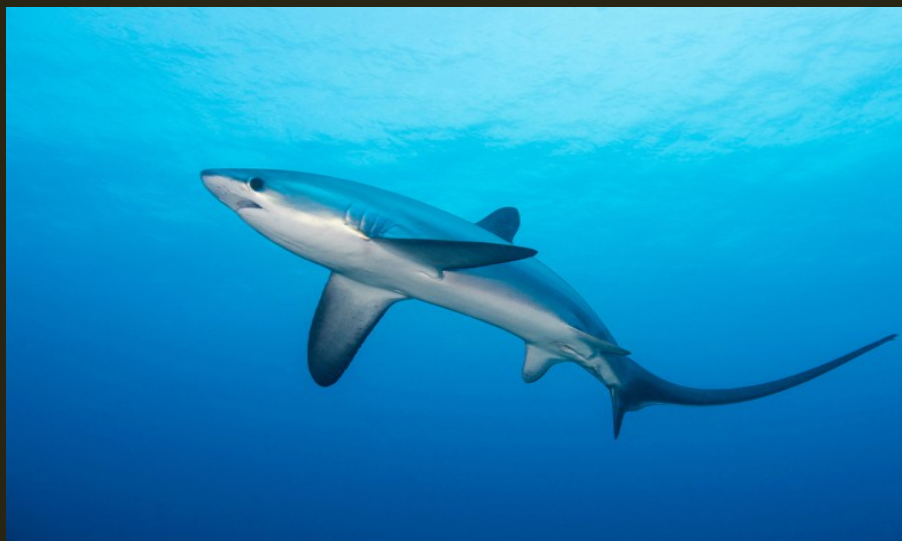

Fertile lands of Fuvahmulah grow a variety of fruits including mango, guava, pine apple, orange and pomegranate. Sweet potato grows naturally in the wet lands without any human effort. There are also some types of berries and unusual fruits in the wild.

D The unique location of the island makes Fuvahmulah one of the best diving destination in the world. Fuvahmulah is a rock in the middle of the ocean, which plays the role of a huge cleaning station and mating place for big pelagic like Black Oceanic Manta Birostrics, Mola Mola, Pilot whales. Fuvahmulah has ultimate set of sharks which can be seen all year round: Tiger Sharks, Thresher Sharks, Hammerheads, Silver tip, Whale shark, Grey reef, White tip. Big schools of Barracudas; Yellow-Fin Tuna, Bonitos, Sailfishes, Marlins and millions of reef fish surround the local reef daily. Last El Nino, which badly affected the coral reefs in the Maldivian islands and around the world, didn't affect Fuvahmulah, we still can enjoy the beauty of coral gardens. The quality of diving isn't affected by seasonal changes, as happens on the rest of the Maldivian atolls. Diving here is always unique and challenging the whole year through. There are more than 20 diving spots around the island, which have a lot of potential for underwater research.

L One of the main feature which makes Fuvahmulah incredibly attractive for the world diving community are Tiger Sharks. Tiger Sharks surround the island cleaning the waste daily produced by fish markets. These sharks are not aggressive. A Diving with the tiger sharks is available everyday and doesn't depend on the current, seasons, time and weather conditions. Experienced dive guides lead these dives following all necessary safety rule requirements. This site is aptly named "TIGERS ZOO". One of the best destination for Tiger Sharks. Almost 100% guaranteed

The real underwater treasure of Fuvahmulah is Thresher Shark. Usually, thresher shark diving is deep, since threshers use cleaning stations that are deeper. However, in Fuvahmulah at the right time thresher sharks come up to cleaning stations at 12-15 mtrs. Thresher sharks are available to see all year through. The highest possibility to see them in the shallow is from June-December.

Whale Sharks visit Fuvahmulah all year round. The probability of sightings is much higher from January – May. Schools of scalloped hammerhead sharks are also common in Fuvahmulah waters. The probability of sightings is higher between November to April. Silvertip sharks are also a regular feature in these waters. And for big schools the best season is January to March.

Situated on the northern side of Fuvahmulah Island within the Gnaviyani Atoll our luxury boutique hotel lies nestled amidst tropical greenery with access to the iconic Thoondi Beach (also known as sunset beach) mere footsteps away. The scenic Dhadimagu Lake and the Fuvahmulah Nature Park are just a 10 minute walk away. It blends modern, contemporary design with custom touches across 15 to 30 well-appointed rooms. Our spacious, air-conditioned rooms feature memory foam beds, premium Egyptian cotton sheets, pillow menus, a work desk, and a laptop-friendly workspace. Private bathrooms are equipped with high-pressure rainfall or hydromassage showerheads and designer toiletries. In-room 42-inch flat-screen TVs with cable channels, minibars, and high-speed Wi-Fi clocked at 100+ Mbps. There is also a 24-hour room service, daily housekeeping, on-site minimarket, motorbike rentals, safety deposit boxes, and laundry/dry cleaning services. The rooftop wellness deck features traditional charcoal saunas and a relaxing jacuzzi/hot tub. A fully functional compact gymnasium is also available.
